WHY DO FARMS DEPRECIATE?

We ask the question without presuming to offer an answer. It is a question for thoughtful consideration, for it is a vital one. The rural population is the backbone of the state, morally, socially, intellectually and politically. And it is not a pleasant or hopeful sign to see this portion of the people growing poorer and fewer in numbers, and the best among them, the enterprising, energetic and venturesome young men and women, flocking to the cities or striking out for the cheap and fertile lands of the West.

But the fact is before us. The State Assessors have visited half the counties of the state, and find in fourteen of them a general depreciation of farm lands. Few people want to buy farms, and those who hold mortgages on them do not always come out whole. One of the Assessors predicts that in a few years there will be more tenant farmers than those who own their places. This means, of course, that those who hold on to their farms and try to keep up the interest on their mortgages and support their families are expected to bring up in bankruptcy.

These are the facts. They ought not to be in the state of New York. The cities are constantly growing greater and richer, and new cities are being chartered out of overgrown villages by every Legislature. These cities are supposed to make handy and profitable markets for the near-by farmer. They buy all he has to sell, and encourage him to try every variety of production. Railroads are continually thrusting out new branches and opening nearer, cheaper and quicker routes to market. A great railroad population calls for subsistence all along these lines, and gives the farmer opportunity to sell at good wages any surplus labor, either of himself or his sons and hired men, that he may have to dispose of. If there is a state of the Union, or a community on the face of the earth, that has a fair opportunity to make money, it would seem to be the great farming interest of New York.

We do not know what is the matter. We will, however, mention the fact that the cities of the state are growing rapidly in wealth as well as population. New York is $50,000,000, richer in real estate alone than it was one year ago, while Brooklyn has gained $30,000,000, Buffalo $5,000,000, Rochester $3,000,000 and Albany and Syracuse $1,000,000 each. Can it be that the cities are sucking the life blood out of the farms, instead of rendering them an honest equivalent for value received?

JUDGE SANDFORD AND THE PRESIDENT.

The President has removed Judge Sandford of the Utah Supreme Court because his conduct does not coincide with the President's policy. Judge Sandford says that he had administered the law in accordance with his oath of office, and wants to know if the President has any other policy than that. No reply has been given.—Providence Journal.

The President is being censured for treating Judge Sandford with kindness and civility. Since he had the right to remove him, and found that there was an imperative necessity for the act, there was no need of bandying words about it. The Judge's excuse is the excuse of every man who fails in office and has to be removed. "He did his duty as he understood it." But his understanding may not be correct and clear, his sense of justice may be unconsciously warped, his knowledge of the law may be defective, or he may be lacking in firmness and courage. All of these defects may exist in a man and still not prove him dishonest or a violator of his own conscience. The President has a policy in regard to Utah, and if the Judge's decisions or acts were in contravention of that policy he deserved removal, no matter how high might have been his respect for his oath of office.

The truth about Judge Sandford is that he did not bring to trial and to punishment the Mormons who were violating the laws of the territory. Polygamy was as barefaced before his eyes as in the palmiest days of the institution. On the other hand he established social relations with these polygamists, and was a constant visitor among them. He also entered into their plans to force the territory into the Union with the polygamic system intact, an accomplishment which would have fastened the abomination upon the state as firmly as slavery was fastened until a bloody revolution wiped it out. Judge Sandford was a direct and formidable obstacle to any policy looking to the subjection of the Mormons to the laws of the country and the eradication of their peculiar institution. It was good policy, and withal indispensably necessary, to have him removed.

Judge Zane, who has been reappointed, was in the office when Mr. Cleveland became President. He had been a terror to the polygamists, and they easily persuaded the President to remove him. His conduct did not coincide with Cleveland's policy, which was to bring Utah into the Union as a Democratic state. President Harrison has treated Judge Sandford with great consideration and courtesy. He has "let him down easy." He did not find it necessary to tell the whole truth about him, and it might never have been known if he had gone out quietly.

TWO MORE VETOS.

Gov. Hill vetoed yesterday the compulsory education bill and the bill to establish a state reformatory for women in New York or Brooklyn.

The purpose of the education bill was an excellent one, but the Governor finds many faults of construction. The provision which imposes a fine of from $20 to $50 upon parents who keep their children at home during school hours he thinks unnecessarily harsh, and he also finds fault because no exemption is provided in case of sickness in the family or even for the sickness of the children themselves. He does not dwell upon the point that all children must be provided with a teacher, whether at home or in a private school, as well as in the public schools, who has been approved by the public school officers, though this is really the feature that makes it unpopular in Catholic communities. And it may be well questioned whether the state does not undertake too much in establishing official supervision over the details of administration in parochial and family schools. A milder system would be one of periodical examinations, to see that the children were given proper instruction in the most essential principles. But all the time the state is getting farther away from the need of a compulsory system. The sharp competition of life, and the attractive opportunities for the educated are great stimulants, even among the most ignorant parents, to efforts for the best American education for their children.

The objections to the women's reformatory are mainly economical. The Governor thinks it would cost the state three-quarters of a million to set the institution in operation. He finds a reformatory now at work at Hudson, with ample grounds already secured. This can be enlarged at very light cost sufficiently to accommodate a great many females who need state discipline, while the abandonment of the Auburn asylum for insane convicts, to take place as soon as the larger one at Matteawan is completed, will make additional room for the same purpose.

The Governor's reasoning is strong and his language courteous. He is at last entitled to credit for refraining from attacks upon the Legislature for its "hypocrisy," "falsehood" and a very long list of deficiencies.

"ENUMERATION" NONSENSE.

The Rochester Post-Express, from which we quote a rather caustic article on the Democratic revival of the "enumeration" agitation, is an independent paper in politics, and is edited by Joseph O'Connor, a staunch Democrat and for several years the editor of the Buffalo Courier. He is well informed on the facts in the case, and is driven to the conclusion from a review of them that the Democrats are acting unwisely. It is evidently the Post-Express' opinion that the year 1885 was the only constitutional year for an enumeration or census, and that the vetoes of the Governor that year sent the whole subject over till 1895. The Democrats may as well prepare to wait. There is to be a federal census next year which will furnish the people of the state with all the information concerning population, wealth, business, health, religion, etc., that the census bill of 1885 provided for. The state is not likely to suffer "in mind, body or estate," if the representation in the Legislature is a little unequal during the next five years. It would be no real improvement to pass the government over wholly to the whisky saloons and other vicious influences that dominate our big cities.

PUBLIC OPINION.

People who want "high" license and who can't get it this year can have higher license. In every city, village and hamlet, no matter how small, in the state, the local Excise Commissioners have the power to raise the license charge to $250.—Troy Press.

The selection of Calvin S. Brice, the railroad chaser, as the successor of William H. Barnum in the Chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee, would seem to indicate that the Democratic party proposes to stay where it is for some time to come. With Mr. Brice as Chairman and Mr. Cleveland as candidate in 1892, the chances of Democratic defeat are magnificent.—Springfield Union.

One interesting change must be noted in the relations of Mr. Cleveland and Governor Hill. So long as the former was in office, a pretense of friendship was kept up, but now this seems to be abandoned. The Cleveland newspapers are attacking Hill with great bitterness, and the Hill newspapers are responding with cordial animosity. At the famous banquet given to Mr. Cleveland and his family from his followers made up the sentiment to the Governor for his laborious political speech. The two factions are at each other's throats.—New York Tribune.

Governor Hill should caution his friend, the New York Sun, about the use of the word "census." The plaint, for which he took out a patent and desires the use of by Democratic editors, is that the Republicans would not authorize an enumeration. The Sun pays no attention to the Governor's choice of words, but hammers the Republicans for "refusing to permit the taking of a census." The one excuse to be offered in its behalf is that it loves Hill none the less, but has a much deeper veneration for Tilden. The bill which the Chicago vendor of political peanuts vetoed was just like the one the Greystone statesman signed.—Utica Herald.

THE ENUMERATION BUSINESS.

"Sense, Census and Nonsense"—The Facts Truthfully Stated.

[From the Rochester Post-Express, Ind.]

The Democratic papers are discussing with much indignation the fact that the apportionment of Senators and Assemblymen in this state is scandalously unfair to their party. We do not wonder that they are indignant at the wrong, but we are a little surprised that they have only just found it out. The apportionment based on the state census of 1875 was not just, and the move population since that time has made it even more conspicuously inequitable than it was originally. But what do our Democratic friends propose to do about it? The constitution provided for a census in 1885 as a tenth year, and an apportionment based on its returns, but no census was taken. The provision of the constitution was mandatory and the Republican Legislature reluctantly, no doubt, prepared to carry it out; but Gov. Hill vetoed the census law passed by that body, though it was essentially the same as the law approved by Gov. Tilden, under which the previous state census had been taken. We never could understand the Governor's action, unless it be explained on the ground that he did not want the then Secretary of State, General Carr, to be nominated for Governor by the Republicans in 1885, and feared that the patronage put at his disposal in taking a census would insure his nomination. The quibble that the constitution provides for an "enumeration" for mere political purposes, and that a "census" is something altogether different, is hardly worth serious consideration.

The Democrats should have accepted a "census" when it was offered, instead of clamoring for an "enumeration." They might have had a whole loaf, but insisted on half a one, and got no bread at all. In standing out for the strictest conceivable construction of the constitutional word "enumeration" they were like the gentleman in the play who was so very scrupulous that he wouldn't even let his own cravat without a warrant from Justice Overdo.

The paper, for which he took out a patent and desires the use of by Democratic editors, is that the Republicans would not authorize an "enumeration." The Sun pays no attention to the Governor's choice of words, but hammers the Republicans for "refusing to permit the taking of a census."

The one excuse to be offered in its behalf is that it loves Hill none the less, but has a much deeper veneration for Tilden. The bill which the Chairman of the committee on peanuts vetoed was just like the one the Greystone statesman signed. —Utica Herald.

THE ENUMERATION BUSINESS.
"Sense, Census and Nonsense." — The Facts Truly Stated.

[From the Rochester Post-Express, Ind.]
The Democratic papers are discussing with much indignation the fact that the apportionment of Senators and Assemblymen in this state is scandalously unfair to their party. We do not wonder that they are indignant at the wrong, but we are a little surprised that they have only just found it out.

The apportionment based on the state census of 1875 was not just, and the move of population since that time has made it even more conspicuously inequitable than it was originally.

But what do our Democratic friends propose to do about it? The constitution provided for a census in 1875, and a year, and an apportionment based on its returns; but no census was taken. The provision of the constitution was mandatory and the Republican Legislature reluctantly, no doubt, prepared to carry it out, but Gov. Hill vetoed the census law passed by that body, though it was essentially the same as the law approved by Gov. Tilden, under which the present state census had been taken. We never could understand the Governor's action, unless it is explained on the ground that he did not want the then Secretary of State, General Carr, to be nominated for Governor by the Republicans in 1885, and feared that the patronage put at his disposal in taking a census would insure his nomination. The quibble that the constitution provides for an "enumeration" for mere political purposes, and that a "census" is something altogether different, is hardly worth serious consideration.

The Democrats should have accepted a "census" when it was offered, instead of clamoring for an "enumeration." They might have had a whole loaf, but insisted on half a one, and got no bread at all. In standing out for the strictest conceivable construction of the constitutional word "enumeration" they were like the gentleman in the play who was so very scrupulous that he wouldn't even tie his own cravat without a warrant from Justice Overdo.

Shade Trees, Humidity and Health—Small Boys ill Because They Smoked Cigarettes—An Announcement: the Alms Commissioners and Keepers of Certain Saloons.

The following business has been transacted in the Ulster Surrogate's Court: Citations issued to prove will of John Barn, of this City, returnable June 24; to prove will of Elijah Woolsey Hall, of New-Paltz, returnable July 8. Order made to advertise for claims in estate of Jacob Hornbeck, of Gardiner. Claims to be presented on or before December 20, 1889. Inventories, proofs of posting, etc., filed in the estates of Mary Hyland, town of Wawarsing, and in the estate of Edward O'Rielly, of the town of Rosendale. Daniel Osterhoudt, appointed Temporary Guardian of Jesse Osterhoudt, town of Wawarsing. The accounts of Hallock Sutton, Executor of estate of Abraham Weeks, of Plattekill, made up. Will of Richard Barden, town of Marlborough, proved and admitted to probate. Witnesses Charles S. Northrup and William H. Townsend. Letters testamentary issued to Catharine A. Barton, Executrix. All the estate is given to the widow, Catharine A. Barton, and her heirs. Dated March 13, 1889. Catharine Kelly and Thomas Murphy, of this City, made their final accounting in the estate of William Kelly. Will of William Weeks, town of Hurley, admitted to probate and letters testamentary issued to Henry Weeks, of this City, and Will of Emline G. Chichester, town of Shandaken, proved and admitted to probate. Will dated January 25, 1889. Witnesses L. P. Cairne and Stewart McKenzie. The property is given to Amos Melton, Executor, in trust for the income of the same to be used by the husband, Lemuel A., during life, after his death the property to go to the four sons, George, Sands, Henry and Oscar.

Certain newspapers along the Hudson River are trying to throw mud at the steam roller here. For instance, the Poughkeepsie Eagle of to-day says:

"The new steam roller recently purchased by the City of Kingston is giving considerable trouble. A recent trial it got stuck in the street and wouldn't budge an inch. An attempt to get it out of the mire resulted in a damaged water tank on the machine. The roller worked all right to-day on Fair-street. If, as alleged, it is a 'white elephant' on this City's hands, the tax-payers here will foot the bill for smash-ups, new 'grates,' engines of engineering, and the like. It is, and apparently it is no affair of police jealous of the 'fine old colonial.' Exchanges offering to give so much per pound for the roller for old iron may or may not be funny in the premises."

This evening Miss Olive Thompson, of New-York City will recite for the benefit of the Rondout Women's Christian Temperance Union in the parlors of the Wurts-Strand Presbyterian Church. Dates of other entertainments announced are: Monday evening, July 17, musical, City Hall, in aid of the City Hall Mission; Weber Hose Company, picnic, Barmann's Elysium, Wednesday, June 19, Musical, Wurts-Strand, and the same evening, Academy of Music, Friday evening, June 21; Monday, June 24, St. Peter's Sick and Aid Society, Kirmis, Barmann's Elysium.

During the late session of the Grand Jury at the Over and Termer Court in this City it was deemed best to use the large room of the new addition to the jail building. When an attempt was made to carry furniture in the room, it was found that the entrance way was too small to allow an ordinary-sized table being carried through. The only way that tables can be placed in the room is for carpenters to take the lumber there and build them.

A "temperance man" here says that in Sweden and Norway no intoxicants are sold except at places where food, coffee and other non-alcoholic drinks are vended and then the sellers are prohibited from selling any liquor except at cost. Such a law in this country and particularly in this City would do much for temperance.

The humidity of the atmosphere has been especially noticeable of late here, due to the fact that there are so many large shade trees on streets. The foliage prevents the sunshine from drying the streets in front of houses. This makes much dampness.

A number of members of the Fourteenth Separate Company, under the command of Captain VanEtten, went to the Kingston Rifle Range this afternoon for their regular Friday afternoon practice shooting.

There is at least one day in the week when Rhinebeck village assumes a lively air, and that is what is called "market day," when farmers bring live stock to the village. Butchers of this City go there to buy stock.

"For what is this great Empire State celebrated?" asked a school teacher here of a bright-eyed pupil this morning. "For its rain," replied the boy, who has lost many hours' sport during the past month.

John Deerman, of Old Hurley, against whom complaint has been made several times by his wife, she claiming that he ill-treated her, has again been arrested, this time on a peace warrant.

A stone weighing over 15 tons was drawn down Main-street, Albany and Union-avenues one day during the rainy spell this week. The narrow tires of the wagon cut deep ruts in the roads.

One evidence that the Catskill Mountain resorts will be opened soon is made by the amount of goods for hotels and boarding houses shipped from here on the Ulster & Delaware cars to-day.

It is again announced that the Alms Commissioners intend prosecuting saloon-keepers who sell intoxicants seven days in the week and to minors.

A three-year-old son of Peter Luffgren while playing on Union-avenue this forenoon was run over by a cab. The child was not injured.

Farmers in town to-day said that enough rain has fallen to supply all reasonable demands and that corn wants sunshine as well as rain.

From present indications it looks as though weeds will not on certain streets before they are cut down or torn up by the roots.

When air gets into the water pipes at the City Hall strange noises are heard. That is all there is of the "ghost" story.

Perhaps there is nothing that will do more towards teaching a boy to be cruel than to get him a goat "to practice on."

North-Rondout has grown in house and population during the past two years. Many Poles and Swedes live there.

The atmosphere was clear to-day. The views obtained from the Catskill Mountains were magnificent.

To attain the age of 80 years is no rarity in this City. Many Dutch people reach 90 years and over.

An odd-looking team on The Strand this morning was a large Virginia mule and a small horse.

It is against the law for merchants to show goods on the sidewalks, thereby obstructing travel.

The funeral of Emma Schreiber in St. Mary's Church to-day was largely attended.

MEN LOCKED UP CONTRARY TO LAW.

Constables of This City and Sheriff of the County Liable for Damages.

The case of Angus Schoonmaker, of the town of Wawarsing, who was arrested on Thursday afternoon by Officers Barry and Sullivan without a warrant and locked up by the Sheriff in the Ulster County Jail here also without a warrant and who at about 9 o'clock at night was taken before Recorder Hussey and fined by him $5—about $100—unreasonably stated—for disorderly conduct, has brought to light the fact, not generally known, that it has for some time been the custom in this City to lock up men in the County Jail without either warrant or complaint. This practice is illegal, and if continued will probably result in a recovery against the constables of the City and the Sheriff of the County of heavy damages. To guard against just this sort of abuse the Legislature in 1887 amended section 165 of the Code of Criminal Procedure so as to read as follows:

"The defendant in all cases must be taken before a magistrate without unnecessary delay, and he may be held at any hour of the day or night. Schoonmaker was arrested between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and immediately upon being informed of his arrest several influential gentlemen of the town of Wawarsing, who have known him for years and who say that he is a respectable man, who has never been arrested before, went to the Sheriff's office and offered to give bail for any amount that might be named. They were informed that bail would not be taken. At about 8:30 o'clock a warrant was brought to the Sheriff's office for Schoonmaker's arrest. This warrant did not comply with the statute, for it was without the endorsement required by the Code of Criminal Procedure, authorizing the arrest in the night time, and despite the remonstrances of A. T. Clearwater, who had been asked by Schoonmaker's friends to go into the matter, Schoonmaker was hustled off to the Recorder's office. At the time of the arrest Schoonmaker had two little children on board his canal boat in the Rondout Creek without any one to look after them. He said they were crying their eyes out because of his absence. He pleaded guilty and paid his fine in order to get back to them, rather than fight out the criminal charge in the Recorder's Court."

The State Sunday School Convention—Reformed Church Synod of the Hudson River.

The Synod of the Reformed Church has been closed at Catskill. The following business was transacted during the final hours: The Committee on Professorate recommended that the Rev. J. W. Beardslee be installed Professor of the Western Theological Seminary, New York, in the fall of 1889. The Committee on Education reported work done during the year and the needs for the future. The Committee on Overtures reported that the amendment to the constitution relating to the election of elders and deacons and the use of catechisms were adopted, and that relating to missions lost. The Committee recommended certain dispensations. The following preamble and resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That at the meeting of Synod immediately following the inauguration of George Washington as President of the United States, a committee composed of the ministers of the Synod be appointed to express the sentiments of the church in regard to the first establishment of the government. Therefore be it

Resolved, First, That now at the beginning of the second century of our Republic it is eminently proper to make this sentiment known. Resolved, Second, That a committee consisting of three ministers and two elders be appointed to prepare a suitable address and to transmit the same to the President of the United States.

The Synod adjourned to meet in Asbury Park, N. J., on the first Wednesday in June, 1890.

The closing session of the State Sunday School Convention at Asbury Park, Saturday, June 13, was largely attended. An exhibition of a model town meeting, "called to advance Sunday School work," was given. Merriment was caused by the portrayal of characters. A conference on "Young Men's Bible Classes and How to Make Them Successful" was held by W. A. Hubbard, Jr., of Rochester. "How to Study the Bible in Private" was the subject of a half hour talk by the Rev. Dr. A. F. Schanfler, D. D., of New-York City. A suggestive Sunday School session was conducted by Frank A. IN AND ABOUT THIS CITY.

BITS OF NEWS, STORIES AND SOME CHAT AND GOSSIP.

Shade Trees, Humidity and Health—Small Boys ill Because They Smoked Cigarettes—An Announcement; the Alms Commissioners and Keepers of Certain Saloons.

The following business has been transacted in the United States Court: Citations issued to prove will of John Brame, of this City, returnable June 24; to prove will of Elijah Woolsey Hunt, of New-Paltz, returnable July 8. Order made to advertise for claims in estate of Jacob Hornbeck, of Gardiner. Claims to be presented on or before December 20, 1889. Inventories, proofs of posting, etc., filed in the estates of Mary H. Land, town of Wawarsing, and in the estate of Edward O'Reilly, of the town of Rosendale. Daniel Osterhoudt, appointed Temporary Guardian of Jesse Osterhoudt, town of Wawarsing. The accounts of Hallock Sutton, Executor of estate of Abraham W. Sutton, of Poughkeepsie, were filed. Will of Richard Batten, town of Marlborough, proved and admitted to probate. Witnesses Charles S. Northrup and William H. Townsend. Letters testamentary issued to Catherine A. Barton, Executrix. All the estate given to the widow, Catherine A. Barton. The will was made March 13, 1889. Catherine Kelly and Thomas Murphy, of this City, made their final accounting in the estate of William Kelly. Will of William Weeks, town of Hurley, admitted to probate and letters testamentary issued to Henry Welch and John Plattick. Will of Emline G. Chichester, town of Shandaken, proved and admitted to probate. Will dated January 25, 1889. Witnesses L. P. Caire and Stewart McKenzie. The property is given to Amos Meloni, Executor, in trust, the income of the same to be used by the husband, and, during life, after his death the property to go to the four sons, George, Sands, Henry and Oscar.

Certain newspapers along the Hudson River are trying to throw mud at the steam roller. For instance, the Poughkeepsie Eagle of to-day says:

The new steam roller recently purchased by the City of Kingston is giving considerable trouble. At a recent trial it got stuck in the mud, and the budge an arm. An attempt to get it out of the mire resulted in a damaged engine and a mangled machine. The roller worked all right to-day on Fair-street. If, as alleged, it is a "white elephant" in the City's hands, the tax-payers here will foot the bill for smash-ups, new "grates," wages of engineers, firemen, superintendent, etc., and apparently it is no affair of places jealous of the "fug-oil colonial." Exchange of rights of way between the City and the roller for old iron may or may not be funny in the premises.

This evening Miss Olive Thompson, of New York City, will recite for the benefit of the Rondout Women's Christian Temperance Union in the chapel of the Wurts-Stratton Presbyterian Church. Dates of other entertainments announced are: Monday evening, June 17, musicals, Hall in aid of the City Hall Mission; Weber Hose Company, picnic, Barnman's Elysium, Wednesday, June 19, Minnawski Haymakers, entertainment and festival, Academy of Music, Friday evening, June 21; Monday, June 24, St. Peter's Sick and Aid Society, Kirmis, Barnman's Elysium.

During the late session of the Grand Jury at the Over and Terminus Court in this City was deemed best to use the shade trees on the new addition to the jail building. When an attempt was made to carry furniture in the room, it was found that the entrance way was too small to allow an ordinary-sized table being carried through. The only way that tables can be placed in the room is for carpenters to take the lumber there and build them.

A "temperance man" here says that in Sweden and Norway no intoxicants are sold except at places where food, coffee and other non-alcoholic drinks are vended and then the sellers are prohibited from selling any liquor except at cost. Such a law in this country and particularly in this City would do much for temperance.

The humidity of the atmosphere has been especially noticeable of late here, due to the fact that there are so many large shade trees on streets. The foliage prevents the sunshine from drying the streets in front of houses. This makes much dampness.

A number of members of the Fourteenth Separate Company, under the command of Captain VanEtten, went to the Kingston Rifle Range this afternoon for their regular Friday afternoon practice at rifle-shooting.

There is at least one day in the week when Rhinebeck village assumes a lively air, and that is what is called "market day." Then farmers bring live stock to the village. Butchers of this City go there to buy stock.

"For what is this great Empire State celebrated?" asked a school teacher here of a bright-eyed pupil this morning. "For its rain," replied the boy, who has lost many hours' sport during the past month.

John Deerman, of Old Hurley, against whom complaint has been made several times by his wife, she claiming that he ill-treated her, has again been arrested, this time on a peace warrant.

A stone weighing over 15 tons was drawn down Main-street, Albany and Union avenues one day during the rainy spell this week. The narrow tracks of the wagon cut deep ruts in the roads.

One evidence that the Catskill Mountain resorts will be opened soon was the large amount of goods for hotels and boarding houses shipped from here on the Ulster & Delaware cars to-day.

It is again announced that the Alms Commissioners intend prosecuting saloon-keepers who sell intoxicants seven days in the week and to minors.

A three-year-old son of Peter Lueffgen while playing on Union-avenue this forenoon was run over by a cab. The child was not injured.

Farmers in town to-day said that enough rain has fallen to supply all reasonable demands and that corn wants sunshine as well as rain.

From present indications it looks as though weeds will rot on certain streets before they are cut down or torn up by the roots.

When air strikes into the water pipes at the City Hall strange noises are heard. That is all there is of the "ghost" story.

Perhaps there is nothing that will do more towards teaching a boy to be cruel than to get him a goat "to practice on."

North-Rondout has grown in houses and population during the past two years. Many Poles and Swedes live there.

Daniel T. Ames, an expert in penmanship, is in attendance on the Bruyn-Russell case as a witness in Circuit Court.

The atmosphere was clear to-day. The views obtainable from the Catskill Mountains were magnificent.

To attain the age of 80 years is no rarity in this City. Many Dutch people reach 90 years and over.

An odd-looking team on the Strand this morning was a large Virginia mare and a small horse.

It is against the law for merchants to show goods on the sidewalks, thereby obstructing travel.

The funeral of Emma Schreiber in St. Mary's Church to-day was largely attended. Light rain, followed by fair weather, promised hereabout for to-morrow.

Several small boys are reported to be ill, caused by smoking cigarettes.

Wild strawberries are being picked in large quantities in the suburbs.

Strawberries of mammoth size are being exhibited in stores.

The Common Council will meet to-night. Paved streets are conducive to good health. Hamburgs and June bugs are numerous. Vacation days are approaching.

Constables of this City and Sheriff of the County Liable for Damages.

The case of Angus Schoonmaker, of the town of Wawarsing, who was arrested on Thursday afternoon by Officers Barry and Sullivan without a warrant and locked up by the Sheriff in the Ulster County Jail here also without a warrant and who at about 9 o'clock at night was taken before Recorder Hussey and fined by him $5—$100 as erroneously stated—for disorderly conduct, has brought to light the fact, not generally known, that it has for some time been the custom in this City to lock up men in the County Jail without either warrant or complaint. This practice is illegal, and if continued will probably result in a recovery against the constables of the City and the Sheriff of the County of heavy damages. To guard against just this sort of abuse the Legislature in 1887 amended section 165 of the Code of Criminal Procedure so as to read as follows:

The defendant in all cases must be taken before a magistrate without unnecessary delay, and he may be held in custody until he can be taken before a magistrate.

Schoonmaker was arrested between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and immediately upon being informed of his arrest several influential gentlemen of that town of Wawarsing, who have known him for years and who say that he is a respectable man, who has never been arrested before, went to the Sheriff's office and offered to give bail for any amount that might be named. They were informed that bail would not be taken. At about 8:30 o'clock a warrant was brought to the Sheriff's office for Schoonmaker's arrest. This warrant did not comply with the statute, for it was without the endorsement required by the Code of Criminal Procedure, authorizing the arrest in the night time, and despite the remonstrances of A. T. Clearwater, who had been asked by Schoonmaker's friends to look into the matter, Schoonmaker was hustled off to the Recorder's office. At the time of the arrest Schoonmaker had two little children on board his canal boat in the Rondout Creek without any one to look after them. He said they were "crying their eyes out because of his absence." He pleaded guilty and said his fine in order to get back to them, rather than fight out the criminal charge in the Recorder's Court.

IN THE FIELD OF RELIGIOUS ENDEAVOR

The State Sunday School Convention—Reformed Synod at Catskill Has Adjourned.

The Synod of the Reformed Church has been closed at Catskill. The following business was transacted during the final hours. The Committee on Professors recommended that the Rev. J. W. Beardslee be installed Professor of the Western Theological Seminary on the last Wednesday in September; that three members at large, appointed by the Synod, be taken from Synodical members by the Council and sent to the General Assembly of the Reformed Church in Holland; that the Rev. J. W. Beardslee be installed Professor of the Western Theological Seminary on the last Wednesday in September; that three members at large, appointed by the Synod, be taken from Synodical members by the Council and sent to the General Assembly of the Reformed Church in Holland; that the Rev. J. W. Beardslee be installed Professor of the Western Theological Seminary on the last Wednesday in September; that three members at large, appointed by the Synod, be taken from Synodical members by the Council and sent to the General Assembly of the Reformed Church in Holland.

WHEREAS, At the meeting of Synod immediately following the inauguration of George Washington as President of the United States, a committee consisting of five ministers and laymen was appointed to express the sentiments of the church in regard to the full establishment of the government, therefore be it

Resolved, First, That now at the beginning of the second century of our Republic it is eminently proper to reaffirm the sentiments expressed in 1789. Second, That a committee consisting of three ministers and laymen be appointed to prepare a suitable address and to transmit the same to the President of the United States.

The Synod adjourned to meet in Asbury Park, N. J., on the first Wednesday in June, 1890.

The closing session of the State Sunday School Convention at Albany, yesterday was largely attended. An exhibition of a model town meeting, "called to advance Sunday School work," was given. Merriment was caused by the portrayal of characters. A conference on "Young Men's Bible Classes and How to Make Them Succeed" was held by W. A. Board, Jr., of Rochester. "How to Study the Bible in Private" was the subject of a half hour talk by the Rev. Dr. A. F. Schanfield, D. D., of New York City. A suggestive Sunday School session was conducted by Frank A. Ferriss. Mrs. James S. Osterlander gave a primary lesson aided by blackboard lessons. Dr. Schanfield taught an intermediate class of girls. The Rev. H. T. McEwen conducted a senior class. On the blackboard he outlined the three topics of his subject, "Christ." The Rev. S. H. Virgin, D. D., Pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, New York City, conducted a model teachers' class. Last evening the Rev. Arthur T. Pierson, D. D., Pastor of Bethany Church, Philadelphia, made an address on "The Debt which the Sunday School Owes the Wide World." The Convention proved one of the most interesting and instructive ever held. Delegates from Kingston City and Ulster County were present. They returned home to-day.

To-night members of the Poughkeepsie Young Men's Christian Association will visit the Rondout Association.

YOUNG THIEF SENT TO PRISON TO-DAY

He Robbed the Proprietor of a Store in this City Last Evening.

This forenoon a boy, Joseph Kinderger, was arraigned before Recorder Hussey on a charge of petty larceny. Last night Kinderger, in company with another boy, entered the store of Jacob Elkan on North Front-street and asked to look at some watches. While Elkan's hand was turned towards them, the boys grabbed a silver watch. He and his companion fled. The proprietor shouted "Stop thief!" Officer Johnston, after a hard chase, captured Kinderger. The other boy escaped. In Kinderger's pockets were found a revolver, large knife with a saw blade, hotel key, a diary, etc. Kinderger said that his home is in New York City, but that he had been stopping for some time past in Jacob's Valley with a family named Rice. The Recorder sentenced Kinderger to six months in the Albany Penitentiary.
